LICENSED USE

1) DEFINITIONS:

1.1) POS Client (terminal):

A Point of Sale client (POS client) is a purpose optimized workstation which provides transactional functions in an environment supporting branch/in-store operations in retail like environments.

1.2) Low End Server:

Low End Server is defined as

(i) a Small Store Server

A Store Server which is serving up to and including ten POS terminals.

This in-store solution does not require a dual server redundant solution or (ii) a Backup Server for High End Server (in a dual controller configuration)

A backup server to a High End Server where this server resides in standby mode for a reliable/ redundant solution.

1.3) High End Server:

High End Server is

(i) a Store Primary Server (dual controller configuration)

A server providing redundancy functionality within a dual controller configuration or (ii) a Store Server, which is serving more than ten POS Clients (terminals).

1.4) Administration Server:

The Administration Server is the central point in the enterprise at which the branch server and POS client images are created, managed and deployed. This server runs a lightweight directory service called LDAP to manage the branch servers and POS Clients.

This server also runs a service, called rsync, so that each branch/store can pull the latest client image.

This server could also be used to create/build client images if a build server was not available.

1.5) Build Server:

Build Server is a server dedicated to building a POS terminal operating environment image that includes the operating system, drivers, tools and application.

2) LICENSE:

The Maintenance Program for SUSE LINUX Retail Solution (components: High End Server, Low End Server, POS Clients), granted under this Agreement, is restricted to the usage defined below

a) The Software must integrate or be collocated (located within same physical facility) with one of following POS systems:

IBM, NCR, Wincor Nixdorf, Fujitsu, Micros, or other POS Solution provider.

b) If a customer has greater than one server in each store, the customer must purchase a High End Server to facilitate the dual controller configuration.

The Administration server must be installed with a SUSE LINUX Enterprise Server or a High End Server.

The Build Server server must be installed with SuSE Linux Enterprise Server or a High End Server.

When installing SUSE LINUX Enterprise Server, the "SuSE Linux minimal system" install option could be used for a smaller Build Server environment. This server is expected to be connected to the Administration Server where the built images will be deployed.

The Build Server and Administration Server could be the same system.

Both, the Administration Server functionality and the Build Server functionality can be used with the SUSE LINUX Enterprise Server or with the High End Server of the SUSE LINUX Retail Solution.

If the administration or the build server functionality is not implemented on an existing and already licensed SUSE LINUX Enterprise Server, at a minimum one High End Server must be ordered from the vendor. A licensed High End Server, which is available in a store or the enterprise will serve the support and maintenance entitlement of this Administration Server and Build Server functionality.

c) This offer is designed to support applications intended for transactional processing for use within the branch or retail store by associates and or the consumer.

d) For SUSE LINUX Servers and Desktops used at the Centre or Head Quarters facility (enterprise, non store processors), the customer must purchase corresponding SUSE software components and maintenance offerings at standard prices unless the product in the enterprise is used for deployment or serving POS systems only.

So long as You are in compliance with the terms and conditions of this Agreement, Novell hereby grants to You, and You hereby accept, a non-exclusive, non-transferable right to (a) install and use the Software only on that number of Installed Servers and POS Clients for which You have purchased a Maintenance Program license.
